BULLETIN
LISBON, Oct. 7.—Special Investigator George Curran and Deputy Sheriff Mike Duty made three additional arrests this afternoon as the result of the grand jury's gambling probe.

Phil Brennan of East Liverpool, charged with gambling for a livelihood and selling race pools; George Rigas, East Liverpool, gambling for a livelihood and operating a gambling room; and Ted Ganias, East Liverpool,

LISBON, Oct. 7.—With a commendation from Common Pleas Judge W. F. Jones for efficiency and thoroughness, the most extensive grand jury investigation in the county's history was recessed Wednesday afternoon after the jury had probed 73 cases and examined 181 witnesses.

The jury, convening Sept. 20, returned 43 true bills of which 23 were secret indictments; ignored 18 cases and continued 11. During the course of its two-and-a-half weeks investigation it conducted an examination of gambling activities in the county, listening to witnesses familiar with the "numbers racket"
and other gambling operations.

Three Arrested

As a result of the jury's activities three East Liverpool residents always been taken into custody and held on arrests imminent. Mrs.
Nell R. [illegible] son, Kayle Rake and [illegible] Hisam, a former East Liverpool municipal court bailiff,

McCulloch's Observe 25th Anniversary

Event Hails Quarter Century of Service To Community

Twenty-five years of service—in merchandising leadership, in civic and church activities, in every endeavor for the welfare of this community—

Such is the occasion for the silver jubilee celebration at the R. S.
McCulloch store which opened this week.

Offers Sales Values

The management of this store looks back upon a quarter century of activities which have meant much in the development of Salem and community and in celebration is offering the public a great variety of sales values.

To further enhance the anniversary event the storeroom has taken on a new daylight tone with its white walls and modernistic effect has been produced in the settings of the large display windows.

R. S. McCulloch came to Salem
25 years ago, took over the A. W.
Jones store, later purchased the building in which his business is now located, enlarged it and year after year has been keeping pace with the modern trend in merchandising.

Taken Off Guard

The Japanese government was taken completely off guard by the American condemnation, one of the highest government officials said.

"We are badly surprised and completely bewildered," he declared. "We had been certain prior to this that the United States understood the situation better than any other country in the world."

"We felt that the American public was completely enlightened on all issues and was traditionally neutral. The prevailing sentiment of the Japanese government is that there is no reason for the action."

Newspaper extras appeared as soon as the bare text of the Washington statement was available. Excitement spread through the city and crowds clustered about newsboys, grabbing the papers as fast as they were printed.

Entire Nation Stirred

The condemnation, coupled with President Roosevelt's Chicago speech urging "concerted action" against aggressor nations, monopolized newspapers and both official and unofficial discussion throughout the empire. As much space was devoted to the American moves as to the actual progress of hostilities in the three-months-old undeclared war with China.

Foreign diplomatic circles in Tokyo described the American action as a "bombshell." Attachés of the United States embassy kept complete silence but representatives of other world powers frankly raised the questions:

"Does this mean action? What form will it take?"

The first editorial comment, in the Japan Times this afternoon, described the American action as "too idealistic and based primarily on sympathy for a weaker nation."

The newspaper said the American judgment declaring the nine-power parley was the result of stop hostilities in the far east.

Further American action appeared imminent in consequence of a formal state department pronouncement last night condemning the imperial Japanese government for its undeclared war in China.

This is expected to take the form of immediate consent to participate in a nine-power conference to consider possible new steps in the

Does This Mean Action?

nations to end what he described as the prevailing reign of international lawlessness.

Its stinging indictment of Japanese aggression was timed to co-

DINNER CLOSES CHURCH EVENT

More Than 300 Attend
Emmanuel Lutheran Banquet

Closing the 45th anniversary celebration of the Emmanuel American Lutheran church, a banquet at the church last night attracted more than 300 persons.

There were 298 adults seated for dinner. It was one of the most successful banquets in the church's history.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schmid, the only living members of the congregation who were present at the adoption of the constitution 45 years ago, were extended honorary life membership as a feature of the celebration.

Resolution Approved

A resolution to this effect praised the couple for their long years of service in the church and cited Mr.
Schmid for serving the congregation as president, secretary, trustee, deacon and elder.

Another resolution read at the banquet expressed the gratitude of the congregation to Mr. and Mrs.
C. O. Schaefer, who have been active in the church for over 38 years.

Mr. Schaefer has served the church as superintendent of the Sunday school, treasurer of the building fund during the construction of the present church home as elder and member of the church council.

Brief talks reviewing the history of the congregation were given by the following former officers of the church: Mr. Schmid, Mr. Schaefer.

Constables Can't Have Assistants, Paid, Stouffer Says

COLUMBIANA COUNTY PROSECUTOR
Karl Stouffer yesterday handed down an opinion, made at the request of Justice William Rich Jr., that a justice of the peace cannot collect fees for "assistant constables" because the law does not specify that a constable should have an assistant.

Constables sometimes have persons aid them in the line of duty, such as holding traffic surveys and the like. The prosecutor's ruling eliminates the possibility of a justice collecting additional costs to pay the "assistant constable."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—No trade or craft ever dies out wholly. The human race has an instinct for keeping alive skill or knowledge, however weird. Manhattan, for example, has one shop that does nothing but reproduce and repair mediaeval armor. Also there are six wig and periwig factories.

On Long Island is a shop that makes swords, hand forged and chased, and there are times when it works night and day. In New Jersey five or six men make a living as fletchers, or arrow makers. Also the ancient art of falconry still exists hereabouts.

The gentlemen of the fancy fly their tiercels at Brewster, N. Y. every now and then, the birds properly hooded and belled, riding on the gloved wrist. The only real monopoly I know is that of an old man in the south of England who has a quarry in which he chips flints.

He sells them to a tribe of Arabs in the Sahara, who, after four centuries of improvements in warfare, still won't use anything but the old flint-lock muskets. They cling to the discarded reasoning that anything good enough for their ancestors is good enough for them.

Massive-headed, burly John L. Lewis is frequently a stroller in the late afternoon avenue parade when in town. Whenever he meets Senator John F. Davis they chatter awhile in Welsh, just to keep in practice. Another who talks the Welsh language is the Ambassador to Russia, Joseph Davies, whose mother was a famed Welsh preacher, known as Rachel O'Fon or Rachel of Anglesea, gifted with poetic fire and oratory.

It is apparent that the President's pulse-taking western trip has provided him with an impression that the mandate he was given in November, 1936, still stands for whatever purpose he has in mind. Whether it was Mr. Roosevelt who was uncertain about the mandate, or whether it was the country which was uncertain about Mr. Roosevelt, the fact is that he is going back to the capital insisting that there's nothing to be uncertain about any longer.

He has come home with the dope, as they say in sports. Unfortunately, his countrymen can't be sure what the dope is, because they didn't make the trip with him, and if they had, their impressions would differ widely, depending on where they obtained them.

Mr. Roosevelt obtained his, of course, from persons sympathetically interested in him and in the political movement he is leading. It seems, according to his statements on the homeward journey, that he is deeply reassured, as so many tourists are when they return home, that he encountered nothing to make him change the general opinion he had of things when he started.

QUIET, PLEASE

It is conceded with no reservations that the bitterest invectives being hurled publicly in the United States today comes from William Green and John L. Lewis, who are striving mightily against each other for supremacy in leadership of organized labor.

There can be no triumph for either of them as long as they continue to employ tactics like those they are using. The thing both of them and their followers are neglecting is the importance of public confidence. They have abused it shamefully.

If they cannot get along with each other and persist in showing it by intemperate outbursts of abuse, they should not expect the public to think better of either or both of them than they think of each other. After all, they are in the best position to know about their personal issues they are arguing so furiously.

The American Federation of Labor is holding its annual convention. In a few days, the Committee for Industrial Organization will hold a convention. The most important piece of business before the delegates, if they have courage to tackle it, is to remind Mr. Green and Mr. Lewis that organized labor continues to be more important than their personal animosities.

IT'S HERE

It's easy to become flushed with anticipation of pleasure about the possibilities of radio during the world series.

For one of these days, or so listeners believe, they will become watchers—at radioside. John Tunis wrote recently in The Atlantic Monthly about watching championship in tennis on a television screen. It wasn't a stunt, but a completely satisfying experience.

The world series has been a climax to the broadcasting year ever since radio sets began to fill up empty corners in the American home. When upward of half the country's population can and does keep track of a baseball game by radio, the age of communication is here.

If only all the possibilities were as pleasant as the prospect of some day seeing a slugger hit a double and get thrown out at third trying to stretch it! Even so, maybe a world series by television will be worth the politicians and special pleaders who will intrude the rest of the year.

For Friday, October 8

The astral influences holding sway on this day are conflicting and, in some instances, adverse. The outstanding factor is the possibility of a sudden break in an old impediment that should make way for a stabilization of the affairs. Elders should prove helpful in bringing this about.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year in which a readjustment and stability will mark the affairs. This should follow the removal of certain obstacles. Shun all possibility of enmity, malice and scandal, and protect personal possessions.

A child born on this day may be serious, studious, profound and independent, and it should surmount frustrating and adverse situations.

War Censor Reveals French Blunder; 1914 Invasion Plan Known, Spurned

(By United Press)

PARIS — The famous German Schlieffen Plan for the invasion of France only cost the Deuxieme Bureau (France's espionage and counter-espionage service) 60,000 pre-war francs. But the history of the episode, according to Paul Allard, French wartime censor, illustrates how blind the French general staff can be in face of a document of such capital importance.

Many years before the war a secret agent, Captain Lamblin, received a letter signed with the pseudonym Vengeur containing a proposition from the author, who had just arrived from Germany, to sell detailed German military plans.

Lamblin paid no attention to the letter. The Bureau receives hundreds such communications. But Vengeur persisted in his letter writing and finally Lamblin was ordered to see him. Three meetings took place in Paris, Brussels and Nice. Each time Vengeur appeared with his head almost completely enveloped in bandages. He handed Lamblin convincing documents proving he was a high German officer attached to the German general staff. He told Lamblin:

"I know I am committing an ignoble deed. But my chiefs have conducted themselves in a still more ignoble manner toward me. That is why I want to avenge myself."

As Allard remarks, this officer was taking terrible revenge, because he handed over the Schlieffen Plan which the Germans partly used in 1914.

ASHTABULA — Norman H. Murray, the composer, says the tunes he writes are spontaneous. "Melodies come as an inspiration," he says. "I may be anywhere, doing anything—or nothing, when all of a sudden a tune pops into my head."

The Deuxieme Bureau sent mis-

tion after mission to verify the plan in Germany. Strategic roads, railway platforms, everything reported by the missions confirmed the plan. But doubts still subsisted. Suffering from acute suspicion, the secret service and General Staff still doubted until the Germans actually put the plan in action in 1914.

The suspicion is such in the Deuxieme Bureau that agents are set on the trail of trusted agents. Martha Richard once told Allard: "I received the Legion of Honor decoration. I could have just as easily ended my career before a firing squad at Vincennes" (where Mata Hari was shot).

The Deuxieme Bureau frequently has been taken in by "plants" and false documents—the Switz affair, the false documents passed on by Karl Schuchardt to General Nollet. Colonel Laurent, chief of the Deuxieme Bureau, was duped in the Aero Postale affair by Luberac and Colin, alias Luco.

French agents in Germany were responsible for the recent Moroccan "crisis" in which Germany was accused of landing troops in Spanish Morocco. According to Allard, if the newspaper campaign had not been stopped in time war might have resulted.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

SPOTTED FEVER

ROCKY MOUNTAIN "spotted fever" known as "tick fever" or "black fever," is an infection usually confined to the western part of the United States. But within recent months several cases have been reported east of the Rocky mountains. Health officials have advised that certain precautions should be taken to guard against this disease in sections where it has been unknown.

The disease is traced to a microscopic speck, a wood tick which is given a tremendously big name, "Dermacentor Andromedae". This tick undoubtedly carries the germ or virus responsible for the disease, transmitted to man by contact.

This insect is usually active during the months from March to June, but it is not unheard of at other times of the year. It is found in waste spaces and uncultivated lands. It is especially common on the range and in certain wooded sections of the country.

Destroy Tick

To prevent the spread of spotted fever it is necessary to destroy the tick. Infected cattle should be dipped in or sprayed with a suitable antiseptic. Of course, this measure of safety is all too often neglected until the disease has made itself known through its human victims.

The patient first complains of slight headache, fever and chills. Severe pain occurs in the muscles, bones and joints. This is especially intense in the back and head.

On the third to the fifth day of the attack, a skin rash appears. This quickly spreads and may involve the entire body. Due to small hemorrhages into its structure, the skin has a mottled appearance.

In a severe case there may be great restlessness and loss of sleep. Delirium and unconsciousness sometimes occur. These are bad signs.

In most instances the fever drops gradually and in about three weeks the patient appears pretty comfortable. At about this time peeling of the skin occurs.

Sections of the country known to be infested with the tick should be avoided if possible. Those who must work in those areas should be dressed and protected against the menace of this pest. If the tick is found on the skin, it should be carefully removed. Never crush it on the skin.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. C. L. J. Q.—Is it possible for a person who has had his tonsils removed, roots and all tissue, to contract tonsillitis? If not, what is the disease that so often attacks the throat when soreness, redness and acute throbbing pain is felt? The glands on the neck are often swollen and the patient feels just as when he had tonsillitis and the tonsils were still there.

A.—The other tissues of the throat may become infected. The patient should consult his physician and have a thorough examination made.

Making the grade

GROWING children with an abundance of energy usually do make the grade . . . and with ease.

Every thoughtful mother recognizes this fact . . . mothers know too that children need help to build and maintain blood strength.

Particularly is this true with those who have suffered some illness or who look pale . . . tire easily . . . are underweight or have lost their zest for food.

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build-up children's health through the red-blood cells, thus putting them in better condition to enjoy the food they eat and to regain lost weight . . . all which make for strength and vitality.

Indications Are Sessions Will Be Resumed After Arraignment

ing the arraignment of defendants named in current trial bills. While the court did not state the purpose of the adjourned session, it is believed the body will continue its investigation into gambling and its ramifications when it meets again.

Members visited the county jail Tuesday afternoon and in their report recommended Sheriff and Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Daughdrill, 88, grand niece of Francis Marion, the Revolutionary war "swamp fox," who died here yesterday. A daughter, Mrs. Will Huston of Washington Court House, O., survives.

Recommend Padded Cell

Recommendations for a padded cell and special provisions for the confinement of juvenile offenders also were included in the report. Under the present set-up it is necessary to include both types of prisoners with others. Judge Lones stated he would refer both recommendations to the county commissioners.

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those grueling, nagging, painful aches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking care of waste products and poisons.

These poisons are often carried in the blood. Most people pass about 3 pounds of waste a day or about 3 pounds of waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under eyes, etc.

Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bleacherites Would Like Giants to Win

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—It may have been loyalty, or plain human sympathy for the underdog, but 98 of the first 100 fans who crowded the bleachers ticket entrance today for the second World Series game said they were rooting for the Giants.

They started gathering at Yankee stadium before dawn. It was cooler and the sky was overcast but the clouds apparently held little threat of rain.

Davey To Go Ahead
In Highway Probe

COLUMBUS, Oct. 7.—Gov. Martin L. Davey indicated today he would go ahead with his plans for a state highway investigation by a group of experts despite the refusal of the University of Michigan to assist in the study.

Ohio State University and Purdue University, other schools asked to lend engineer-investigators, declined to answer before receiving official requests.

Governor Davey announced his investigation plans after State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson held up payment of all highway department invoices. Ferguson said he would study charges that the state paid more than subdivisions for construction and materials.

Franklin County Prosecutor

Ralph J. Bartlett, whom the governor said would hold a public hearing on charges against the department, asserted he knew nothing of it except what he had read.

"Good" Sentence

COLUMBUS — J. H. Huhts, 37, convicted of embezzlement, told Judge John R. King he once had studied for the ministry.

Judge King forthwith sentenced him to attend church regularly for 18 months—and to write a resume of the weekly sermons for the judge's inspection.

GARR BROTHERS TO FACE COURT

Arraignment Today for Confessed Slayers of Army Man

SHELBYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 7.—The commonwealth's legal machinery whirred into second gear today in its case against Roy, Jack and E. S. Garr, indicted yesterday for the Main street slaying of Brig. Gen. H. H. Denhardt here Sept. 29.

The "Garr boys," brothers of Mrs. Verna Gay Taylor, 40-year-old widow General Denhardt was accused of murdering, were to be arraigned in circuit court this morning.

At the same time it was to be decided whether they should remain at liberty under bonds totaling $50,000 which were executed after preliminary murder warrants were filed soon after the 61-year-old deadhead.

Return Indictment

The indictments were returned a short time after J. Ballard Clark, chief of defense counsel sent into the grand jury room a request for "action"—either the return of the indictments or dismissal of the warrants. The move, made after it was indicated the jurors were deadlocked, was almost without precedent in Kentucky legal annals.

Indictments pointed to opening of the brothers' trial next Monday.

Presiding will be Circuit Judge Charles C. Marshall, the same jurist who last April heard the commonwealth demand at New Castle, Ky., that General Denhardt be sent to the electric chair for the slaying of Mrs. Taylor, his fiancee, who was found dead in a roadside ditch last Nov. 6 after she had been on an automobile ride with Denhardt. The jury disagreed.

General Denhardt was to have gone on trial Sept. 21, the day after he was shot to death.

The Garrs indicated at their examining trial that their case would be based on a self-defense plea.

months-old Civil war in Spain.

Treaty of Action

Their ominously unclarified threat of "decisive action" was held over Italy unless Premier Mussolini replied quickly to the week-old invitation to confer with France and Britain on withdrawal of foreign soldiers from the Spanish peninsula.

A curt communiqué, issued after yesterday's long conference between Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Ambassador Charles Corbin, said:

"The two governments have agreed on the desirability of receiving an early reply from Italy."

Informed sources said at the time that France and Britain were, in effect, giving Rome 24 hours to respond to the invitation.

There was a growing conviction in authoritative quarters that a stern display of Anglo-French "force" might be the only way to get Il Duce's blackshirt Legions out of Spain.

Today informed persons were inclined to discount the suggestion that a 24-hour ultimatum had been given to Mussolini. They said the 24 hours was mentioned merely as an approximate period of grace and not a definite time limit.

The League of Nations assembly, throwing its "moral support" to China in the far eastern crisis, called last night on the nine-power treaty group to act and warned Japan there might be other measures if she did not halt the invasion.

It acted by unanimous adoption of a report of the league's Sino-Japanese advisory committee.

Relief Reduced

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Reduction of work relief rolls in Ohio from 148,406 for the week ended Sept. 28, 1936, to 83,176 for the week ended Sept. 18, 1937, was announced today by the Works Progress Administration.

Get Along, Dogie, Or Pay Your Bill

LISBON, Oct. 7.—A request for assistance in the matter of two homeless steers gave the sheriff's office a western aspect Wednesday.

George W. Morlan, living near Signal on Route 153, reported two footloose yearlings, after looking over the community, had picked his farm for their home. They had been in the vicinity for two weeks, apparently looking for the ideal location to spend their remaining years. Tuesday they settled on Morlan's place.

Morlan states the owner may have his cattle by identifying them and paying their board bill. When it was disclosed that Sam Ward, living near Elkhorn, also had an unclaimed cow and calf, a wag suggested a round-up and branding.

JAPAN CALLED PACT VIOLATOR

Outspoken Condemnation Comes From State Department

which should govern the relationships between nations and is contrary to the provisions of the nine-power treaty of Feb. 6, 1922, regarding principles and policies to be followed in matters concerning China, and to those of the Kellogg-Briand pact of Aug. 27, 1928.

It marked the second time in little more than five years that the United States had resorted to this extreme in its far eastern policy. Similar action was taken in 1932 by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson when he sought to call Japan to account for its invasion of Manchuria.

Significantly, the outspoken pronouncement said this government's conclusions with respect to Japan in the present crisis are "in general accord with those of the assembly of the League of Nations."

Informed observers interpreted this to mean that Secretary Hull and his advisers already have decided to accept an anticipated invitation to participate in a conference of nine-power treaty signatories now being convoked under league auspices.

Youngstown Probes New Attack Story

YOUNGSTOWN, Oct. 7.—The city's third girl attack case in six weeks was revealed today when police began search for a 20-year-old autoist who forced a 14-year-old girl into his car and assaulted her in Mill Creek park.

The girl told detectives the man called to her from his auto as she was going home from school. He asked her to purchase a package of gum, she said, and then pulled her into the auto when she handed him the confection.

The attack occurred only six hours after a 17-year-old youth had been given an indeterminate prison sentence on an attack charge.

Palestine Terrier Wins Show Honors

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Shen of Alliance.

He leaves his parents here, his wife, two sons and one daughter.

LAKELAND, Fla., Oct. 7.—City and county police followed slim clues today in their hunt for the torturers of a band of handsome, 200-pound Douglas Beane.

Assistant State Attorney J. C. Rogers said he believed a band of men tortured Beane, mutilated his body and dumped him in a lonely "love lane" near Lake Deeson. He said brutality of the crime indicated a revenge motive.

Rogers said Beane apparently was killed on Tuesday. There was no sign of a struggle in Beane's arm, abandoned nearby. He was 49.

WOLVERINES TO TEST WILDCATS BIG TEN POWER

Lynn Waldorf Not Sure Of Strength of His New Grid Team

By WILLIAM WEEKES
CHICAGO, Oct. 7—Nothing that happens when his boys start defending their Big Ten title against Michigan Saturday is going to surprise Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern's Wildcats.

The Wildcats of 1936 stirred up a lot of surprises for Waldorf, most of them easy to take. This year, however, there are so many green bands operating where veterans held forth in the big title drive, that he needs a couple of games to get an idea of what to expect. He figures Michigan will clarify the situation.

The Wildcats have been drilled most of this week on ways and means of looking after two Michigan sophomore backs, squat Hercules Rends, and triple-threat Fred Trosko. The Wolverines spent another day on fundamentals. Coach Harry Kipke also definitely gave up his plan of converting Fred Jahnke, a tackle, into a fullback.

At Illinois, Coach Bob Zuppke showed signs of optimism for the first time this season as his squad produced real drive in the offensive maneuvers with which he hopes to surprise Notre Dame Saturday. The Irish got another warning from Elmer Layden in the form of a forward pass defense session, indicating the Irish coach is certain Zuppke will come up with something unusual.

While Indiana hustled through a workout on running and aerial plays to be used at Minnesota Saturday, the Gophers were given another dose of fundamentals by Bernie Biernacki, Wisconsin and Chicago, which tangle at Chicago, staged pleasing offensive showings in their final hard work-outs.

Coch Mal Edward strove for more "umph" in Purdue's offense as the Boilermakers polished their game for Carnegie Tech's invasion. Iowa, with Bradley coming up Saturday, continued to look ahead to the Wisconsin clash next week, Coach Irvin Tubbs checking over every item of the Hawkeyes' game. Ohio State, en route to its battle with Southern California at Los Angeles, whipped through a brief workout at Stagg field, Chicago's home park.

MRS. HILL SURE OF GOLF TITLE

Feels This Is Her Year In Women's National Golf Tournament

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 7—After 12 years of fruitless sniping at the Women's National golf championship Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City entered the quarter-finals today, convinced that "this is my year."

The sturdy fairway veteran, mother of a 22-year-old son, reached the semi-finals in three other years "but something always happened. Maybe this 13th effort will be my lucky year."

In advancing to the quarterfinals, the Kansas City star ousted a former champion, Marion Hollins of California, and Marion Miley of Cincinnati, a pre-tournament favorite. Her opponent today was Mrs. Greg Liful of Pacific Palisades, Calif.

Mrs. Liful, victor yesterday over Barbara Ransom of Stockton, Cal. 2 and 1, defeated Mrs. Hill in the western amateur in 1933. In their only other tournament meeting, in 1929, Mrs. Hill triumphed in the Western Amateur finals.

In other matches today, Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Greenwich, N. C., medalist, engaged Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, Texas; Kathryn Hemphill, 1936 semi-finalist from Columbia, S. C., played Mrs. Charles Newbold of Wichita, Kan., and Patty Berg of Minneapolis met Mrs. Willard E. Shepard, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Shepard erased lanky Clara Callendar of Del Monte, Cal. yesterday. Miss Berg trimmed Hilda Urbantek of Austin, Texas, and Mrs. Newbold erased Mrs. Glenn Collett Vare, Philadelphia. In another great comeback, Mrs. Dan Chandler, five down at the turn, overcame the deficit to defeat Mrs. R. M. Torgerson of Queens Valley, N. Y., and Mrs. Page won an impressive 5 and 3 victory over Jean Bauer of East Providence, R. I.

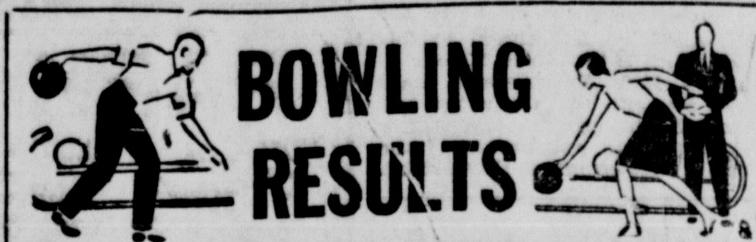

Miss Hemphill beat Mrs. Jane Cotman Jameson, Greenville, S. C.

"THE SILVER RODD MYSTERY"

by Lewis Allen Browne

SYNOPSIS

Gerald Montieth, wealthy, 50, is murdered in his library mid-afternoon. The weapon is a silver rod, supposedly: really a stiletto with the blade secreted. For years it hung on the library wall as an ornament. It was hanging there when found fifty feet from the dead man. Montieth had told his niece, Mary, that he would disinherit her unless she married David Forrest, one of his friend and neighbor. Mary thinks she loves Howard Griswold, an instructor. It is known that Mary left the Forrest grounds that afternoon, where a party was held, and went home, and that he met Griswold on the ground. A painting supposedly a Van Dyck copy, is stolen and an alleged art expert named Lardeau was known to have been there that afternoon. A new maid is another one under suspicion, as well as Brauman, a gardener, seen hanging about the library porch where the body was found.

CHAPTER XI

Mason, my father-in-law's butler, had just brought another bottle of scotch and was tapping on the door, when Dave stepped in.

"One of your guard is out here, Sergeant," he said, "and wants you at once."

We all went out together. The officer was on the veranda. He stepped over to Harper and whispered something.

"Come on!" Harper said to us and hurried down, following the guard.

"What's up?" I asked.

"Some man has hanged himself down here!"

We hurried down, through the stile and over to a scaly tree, where the body was on the ground.

"I cut him down, but he's dead," the guard said.

Harper flashed a light.

"It's Brauman, the gardener!" Foxcroft cried.

"Yes," I agreed, "it's Brauman." Harper knelt and examined him.

"He's gone, but still warm. What was round his neck?"

The guard who cut him down, used the flashlight and found the piece of rope that he had untied from the gardener's neck when he cut him down.

"Clothes line, or window cord," said Harper.

Foxcroft stared and said nothing. I could guess that he was still obsessed with the belief that Howard Griswold was the guilty man. This rather upset him. It looked very much as though Brauman had committed suicide through remorse—through a growing terror that his crime would be found out.

I flashed a light to the limb of the tree. There was an overturned cement urn under the limb. Brauman, evidently, had upturned the urn, stood on it, adjusted the rope and jumped off. It was a tall, three foot urn. A gardener would be likely to think of just such a thing to use. I set up the urn, got on it and untied the other part of the rope, examining it with the flashlight.

Sergeant Harper had sent the guard to get someone to take the body to Greatport, the county seat. Foxcroft agreed that calling a coroner would be unnecessary.

"It was a window cord, not a clothesline," I told them, and showed them the rusted loop where a window weight had been suspended. They agreed with me.

"Now listen," Foxcroft said, earnestly. "There is no need to spread this, to distract anyone either at the Montieth home or at Forrest's. Just get the body away. You see, a man might have forty reasons for wanting to end it all. We may find something about Brauman that will reveal his reason. I believe that it is purely coincidental, he happened to hang himself the same day that Montieth was killed."

"He was," I reminded them, "the most nervous of any of those we questioned."

She left to meet him.
"Are you sure?" I nodded. "Not so good. Two can plot a crime."

"Look here, Dave, you don't think that Mary would do anything like that?"

"Montieth told me he intended to disinherit her if she continued her foolish determination to marry Griswold. He might have told her the same. Then what? Get him out of the way before he can change his will."

"You ought to write novels," I said evasively.

Foxcroft called me. I went out and we picked up Sergeant Harper and drove to Greatport. They had taken Brauman's body ahead.

Doctor Sutton came over to Foxcroft's office. He had been notified of Brauman's suicide.

"It's just a formality, I'll go over later," he explained. "I have something of more interest. The sergeant brought back the silver rod, you know."

We knew that.

"Montieth was killed with that blade, there isn't a doubt of it. The autopsy proved it. I doubt if he lived, that is, was conscious, ten seconds after he was stabbed."

"Give me the silver rod," Harper said. "It wouldn't do any harm to own, up to the Montieth home. There hang it back on the library wall for a while, we might get some new dope—someone might try to steal or, not knowing that we knew about it, try to clean the hidden blade."

We agreed.

Doctor Sutton said that he would go over to the morgue and take a look at the suicide.

"I don't see how I can be of use tomorrow," Foxcroft told us. "I am going to New York to see my cousin, Colton, about that Professor Lardeau. My opinion is that he sneaked in and stole the painting, but had nothing to do with the murder."

We dropped him off at his home in South Cove, which is four miles from Greatport. Harper and I went was a guard at the door. Davison was still up. We told him to get some sleep, and went to the library alone. We put the innocent looking silver rod back on the little hook where it had been hanging for so many years. Harper wound a mere filament of wire he had brought with him, around the rod and the hook in such a way that if anyone lifted it off, the delicate thread of wire would be broken.
